Why Bermuda, BVI or Cayman?

As UK Overseas Territories, Bermuda, the British Virgin Island and the Cayman Islands offer a number of important advantages as jurisdictions for efficiently managing and protecting international wealth.

- The islands' legal systems are based on that of England, with final appeal to the Privy Council of the House of Lords in the UK. Each jurisdiction offers modern and flexible trust law based on the English model.
- They are economically and politically stable, with sophisticated infrastructure and high standards of living. All are English speaking.
- The jurisdictions are tax-neutral, with minimal income taxes on local earning only and no profit or capital gains tax.
- They are all OECD 'white-listed' and compliant with internationally-recognised standards for combatting tax evasion, money laundering and terrorist financing.
- As premier international financial centres, they each offer world-class expertise across multiple business sectors, including service providers such as auditors and accountants.
- Immigration in each island generally allows the transfer of key employees from overseas.

“ Bermuda: “They have an amazing talent pool and a great reputation.”
“One of the leading international trust firms, by quite a measure.”

– Chambers HNW

“ Cayman and BVI: “For trust work they are very prominent and involved in the community. They are always very useful, practical and responsive. I have been impressed with their speed and proactivity.”

– Chambers HNW

At the same time, tax and financial planning are increasingly regulated. The need for trusted, professional advice and multi-jurisdictional expertise has never been greater.

Our lawyers regularly advise on the creation of offshore trusts for international clients, ranging from one generation succession planning trusts to more complex dynasty trusts designed to preserve a family's wealth for many generations. The team also advise on the reorganisation of trusts and corporate structures for the preservation of capital and long-term planning for family businesses.

In addition, we have long experience in assisting individuals and families in creating structures to further their philanthropic endeavours, with the establishment of charitable trusts and foundations.

Where interests in Bermuda, the BVI or the Cayman Islands are part of a global portfolio, we work alongside other advisers to ensure our clients receive the most appropriate holistic advice.

Our services include:

- Dynastic estate planning
- Designating ownership structures of substantial family businesses
- Corporate governance of cross-border structures for private trust companies to bolster the substance of family and business succession planning
- Restructuring trusts to extend the duration of a trust or to improve tax efficiencies or adapt to changes in family circumstances
- Creation of charitable and philanthropic foundations, purpose trusts, employee benefit trusts, BVI VISTA trusts and Cayman STAR trusts
- Advising on fiduciary decision making and related issues and trustee liability issues
- Advising on regulatory issues affecting trusts
- Prenuptial agreements and protection of trusts from divorce
- Customising reporting solutions for both FATCA and CRS compliance

Types of Trusts and Their Uses

Private Trustee Companies | These are companies established specifically to act as trustee for one trust or a group of related trusts (for example, for those trusts established for the benefit of a particular family or for a particular commercial transaction).

Purpose Trusts | Unlike a conventional trust, purpose trusts are created for the fulfilment of a non-charitable purpose, not for the benefit of a person. They can hold assets for that purpose, for example holding shares in a private trust company.

Employee Benefit Trusts | An EBT is a discretionary trust set up by a company or group of companies to hold cash and other assets, for example shares, to provide benefit to employees and their families.

BVI VISTA Trusts | A VISTA trust is designed to hold shares in a BVI incorporated company, and has the effect of removing the trustee's duty to monitor and intervene in the conduct of the directors and the management of the trust's underlying BVI company, notwithstanding that his trust shareholding gives him a controlling interest in the company. VISTA trusts can be useful in effective succession planning, the preservation of family wealth and continuity of family business.

Cayman Islands STAR trusts | A Cayman STAR trust is an alternative form of trust with a number of special features that do not apply to ordinary trusts. One of the key features of a STAR trust is that it facilitates separation of the right to benefit under a trust from the right to enforce the terms of the trust. This means that a beneficiary will not be able to sue the trustee or obtain information concerning the trust. Instead, the only people who can do so are those appointed as "enforcers" under the trust deed or by order of the court. A STAR trust can be an effective family business succession vehicle and may also be useful as a substitute for a charitable trust in some circumstances.

Our aim is to help clients avoid litigation wherever possible and our team has considerable experience in the resolution of trust disputes through arbitration and mediation. We are proud of our reputation for achieving speedy resolutions and compromises satisfactory to all parties.

Where litigation is unavoidable we are adept at focusing on our clients' critical objectives and providing pragmatic advice on their potential legal, commercial and reputational risks.

- Advice to trustee and beneficiaries in trust disputes
- Breach of trust claims

- Construction and rectification of trust deeds

“ Trust matters are particularly well represented within the firm's caseload, including a wide range of related litigation, and various trustees and family trusts number among its clients.”

GLOBAL LIFESTYLE SERVICES

Family Offices and Residency in Bermuda, the British Virgin Islands or the Cayman Islands

The British Overseas Territories of Bermuda, BVI and Cayman are highly attractive locations for wealthy individuals and families to establish a family office, or to acquire residency. Aside from their natural beauty, comfortable climate and relaxed pace of life, the islands are all English speaking and have sophisticated infrastructures. The jurisdictions levy no corporation, income or capital gains tax, nor stamp duty other than relating to local real estate. They offer a range of vehicles, such as private trust companies, exempted companies and partnerships, for holding assets and employing staff. The absence of exchange controls, rapid incorporation, and fairly low establishment and ongoing regulatory fees are also part of the attraction.

Eligibility requirements for residency certificates vary by jurisdiction. Those who are retired and own or rent property in the islands are usually granted indefinite residence. Those intending to work will require a work permit and immigration laws vary by jurisdiction.

Our Private Client & Trust team can make the process of acquiring residency or setting up and running a family office in Bermuda, Cayman or BVI as smooth as possible. We offer a full suite of services ranging from assisting with buying or renting property to advice on employment law, immigration, contracts and employer responsibilities such as payroll tax, pensions and health insurance. When it comes to running a family office, we can provide ongoing corporate, trust and management services via our Client Services group.

Aircraft and Yacht Registration

The efficient management of major assets such as aircraft and yachts is an important part of an overall wealth management plan. Our attorneys have extensive expertise in advising on effective financing and ownership structures for such assets.

Bermuda is a world-renowned centre for shipping and aircraft registration. The Bermuda Shipping and Maritime Authority, which is a category 1 member of the prestigious Red Ensign Group, has over 200 yachts on its registry, aggregating over 67,000 gross tons. Bermuda's Aircraft Registry, operated by the Bermuda Civil Aviation Authority, has an excellent reputation internationally for being safe and well-regulated. It accepts Type Certificates from the EASA, the FAA and Transport Canada. As a result, an aircraft from another registry can be registered in Bermuda with minimal inconvenience and expense, and if subsequently sold it can be easily exported to another jurisdiction. Our lawyers can advise on all aspects of the registration process.
