

Conyers is seeking an ambitious, technically strong and personable junior transactional lawyer to join its busy Corporate team in the Cayman Islands and to play a part in our ongoing growth plans. Our practice groups within the Corporate team specialise in advising across the whole spectrum of transactional matters, including insurance, banking and financing, capital markets, securities, shipping and aircraft registration and financing, mergers and acquisitions, investment funds and investment business. Matters are frequently multi-jurisdictional and involve close collaboration with our colleagues across our global network. This is a great opportunity to work with a dynamic team in a collaborative environment.

What You'll Need

- Ideally 2-4 years of strong PQE in corporate, funds and/or finance matters.
- Admission to, or eligibility for admission to, the Cayman Islands Bar.
- Strong academic record and excellent technical analysis with the ability to translate complex transactional requirements into clear, practical advice.
- Evidenced ability to manage competing priorities and deadlines across multiple matters with strong project management discipline and meticulous attention to detail.
- A collaborative mindset with the confidence to operate independently, including direct client engagement.
- Clear, concise communication and a client-centric approach, with sound judgment and commercial awareness.
- Good discipline in professional and time management.
- A proactive, outward-facing personality and great inter-personal skills, with an interest in knowledge development, training and measured business development.
- If you are looking to grow your career in a top-tier, multi-jurisdictional team advising sophisticated clients on high-profile mandates, working within a collaborative and stimulating team environment, we would like to hear from you.

Prospective candidates should email CareersCayman@conyers.com prior to the application deadline of 13 March 2026 to apply.
